Catarrh
IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla — the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

AN INDEPENDANT BLAST.

ADDRESS OF THE STATE COMMITTEE TO PENNSYLVANIA REPUBLICANS.

THE PEOPLE MUST RULE.

The following address was sent out by the State Committee of Republican Independents, last Thursday.

To the Republicans of Pennsylvania:

We address you, fellow-citizens, as Republicans, representing all sections of this Commonwealth, proud of the history and achievements of the great party to which we belong and anxious that in the future, as in the past, it shall promote and obtain that highest form of free government of the people, by the people and for the people."

As Republicans we indorse the great principles embodied in the platforms and vindicated by the history of the party of Lincoln, Sumner, Stevens, Garfield and other illustrious leaders, both living and dead. The Republican party has still a mission to fulfill in the maintenance of the protective system and in the guaranty of a free and secret ballot in the hands of every citizen. We remember that the republican party sprung from the manhood and the conscience of the people and we believe that its high and honorable purposes cannot be sustained or its mission fulfilled except by the preservation of the same high standard of duty and honor which signalized its Birth.

Never in the history of the State was it more necessary than now to seek to enforce the prerogative of a free people to have a controlling voice in the nomination of those who may administer the government of the Commonwealth. And if, in the making of a nomination, a convention fails to register the choice of the majority and simply carries out the dictates of an autocratic boss, we believe that such a nomination justifies every Republican in rebuking it at the polls.

Upon what ground does Mr. Delamater seek your support for the great and responsible office of Governor of the Commonwealth? Is it the spontaneous voice of the people that calls him, or the methods of the ward politician that obtains for him reconition as a candidate?

Mr. Delamater has long been a self-seeking-machine politician, who gained the favor of the boss of the Republican party by his skilful use of the methods of his political master.

As State Senator his record shows him to have been an advocate of corporate interests, to the prejudice of state interests of the people. His affiliation with the Standard Oil Company is well known. He is charged with defeating the tax bill for the relief of the farmers, the Billingsley bill for the relief of the oil men, and with hostility to labor legislation—instances out of many others to indicate the tenor of his statesmanship.

While in the Senate he obtained large sums of State money on deposit in his bank, thereby using his political power for personal profit, and committing an offense prohibited by the Constitution, one of the penalties of which is disqualification for the office he now seeks.

But the circumstances attending Mr. Delamater's nomination have forced into prominence a far graver issue than that of his personal fitness.

Not only was the free choice of the party thwarted by his nomination, but a subservient convention inserted in the party platform (which Mr. Delamater has unqualifiedly indorsed) the following declaration:

"For the chairman of our national committee, M. S. Quay, we feel a lasting sense of gratitude for his matchless services in the last Presidential campaign. As a citizen, a member of the General Assembly, as Secretary of the Commonwealth under two successive administrations, as State Treasurer by the overwhelming sufferage of his fellow-citizens, and as Senator of the United States, he has won and retains our respect and confidence."

No untrammled convention would have dared to make such an indorsement.

The record of Mr. Quay is, or should be, known to every citizen. In 1879 the leading newspapers of the Republican party cast him from their ranks for his prostitution of the Pardon Board in connection with the riot bill briberies. His conduct as the moving spirit and direct beneficiary of the odious Recorder's bill has not been forgotton by the citizens of Philadelphia. Responsible accusers have repeatedly and specifically charged him with malfeasance in office, even with embezzlement of large sums of the public moneys. These charges he has seen fit neither to explain nor deny, even after they have gained currency on the floor of the lower house of Congress.

Under those circumstances is is reasonable to insist that Mr. Delamater's success will be Mr. Quay's vindication.

Mr. Quay, who already dispenses the Federal patronage of the State, purposes to control, as well, the executive and Legislative branches of the government of the Commonwealth. To secure this end he had forced the nomination of Mr. Delamater for the high office of Governor of Pennsylvania, in the face of the indignant protests of thousands of the best Republicans of the State, and now asks the party to ratifiy his choice. He also proposes the election, as the leader of the State Senate, of Chairman W. H. Andrews, who used without scruple the machinery of the Republican State committee to force the nomination of Mr. Delamater. He is likewise endeavoring to secure the election of his son as his representative in the Assembly, and, if successful, will hold within his grasp both the executive and legislative powers of the State. In addition, he will striye to control and dominate the Pardon Board and thus have it in his power to thwart and nullify the very processes of justice, a dangerous power which he has already shown himself only too willing to exercise.

But the consequences of the election of Mr. Delamater are not bounded by the absolute control of all the branches of the government of the State of Pennsylvania, which would thus be placed in the hands of Mr. Quay. The success of Mr, Quay in this contest will constitute him the indorsed and chosen leader of the Republican party both in the State and nation, and if the party must enter into the Presidential contest of 1892 handicapped by the leadership the party would be hopelessly defeated before the canvass began. To save the party from defeat in that contest it is absolutely necessary that he be dethroned now. It is there fore the highest duty of Republicans to their own party to refuse to vote for and sustain his candidate at this time.

To accomplish the end proposed all earnest Republicans should at this fitting time strike their most effective blow by voting as Republicans for Ex-Governor Robert E Pattison. To stay at home or cast a ballot for a hopeless third candidate would be an evasion of duty and a waste of power.

Of Mr. Pattison's fitness for the office we leave Republicans alone to speak.

On his retirement from office in 1887 the most partisan Republican newspapers which are now opposing him were unanimous in their indorsements of his administration.

We quote from the Philadelphia Press of January 17, 1887:

"It has been, all in all, an administration against which nothing can be said. The integrity of Governor Pattison's purpose and the excellence of his intentions will not be questioned."

The Philadelphia Evening Telegraph of January 18, 1887, called his administration "one of the most notably honorable and useful administrations that this State ever enjoyed."

The North American said: "If his administration has not been brilliant it has been better—it has been safe."

The Inquirer of the same date said: "The retiring administration retires with a most admirable record. It goes out with clean hands, with good fame ane common respect, and nothing but the narrowest partisan prejudice and bigotry would deny it the credit of its integrity and usefulness."

To these Republican testimonials of his fitness for the office we add nothing for nothing is required.

There is but one issue in this campaign, Purity of the ballot, fair elections, honest and courageous men in office, clean administration of public affairs are and always will be supreme questions in a republic. If the Republicans of Pennsylvania have reached that degree of subserviency that they will solemnly cast the vote of approval of a leader whose hands are stained with corruption, then the days of the Republican party are numbered.

The election of Robert E. Pattison cannot be construed as a partisan victory. His election in 1882 by a plurality of 40,000 was followed, in 1884, by a Republican majority of 80,000 for James G. Blaine. The maintenance of the system of protection cannot honestly be brought into this contest. No true friend of protection will desire to attach it to the fortunes of Mr. Quay. The defeat of Matthew S. Quay and his candidate will depend upon intelligent Republicans. It will rid the Republicun party of its most selfish and corrupt leadership, restore you your citizenship and vindicate your Commonwealth.

GOUGH'S TEMPTATION.

OFFERED A DRINK—"PUT IT UP, I SAY, BEFORE I DISGRACE MYSELF."

"Yes, gentlemen, I carried a pint bottle of whiskey in my pocket for fifteen years and never drank a drop of it," said Milo Bosworth, a well-known citizen of the south side, who is 85 years old, in Justice Peck's office yesterday afternoon. "When I was a young fellow I drank pretty hard, in fact, I was drunk about all the time, but when I got married I thought it was time to call a halt. I went down to Chagrin Falls on a little business, and before I came home I stopped at Beard's grocery, as was my custom, and had my flask filled. I had made up my mind that that would be the last liquor I would drink for fifteen years, but when I got into my wagon I fell to thinking about the matter and came to the conclusion that there was no time like the present, and I just put that bottle in my hip pocket, and there I carried if for fifteen long years, and during that time I never touched a drop of liquor of any kind.

"Well, about twelve years after that, Gough, the great temperance orator, was advertised to speak in Cleveland. The posters informed us that the meeting would be held in the Presbyterian church. You young fellows probably never heard of that church. It was a large, wooden structure, and stood on the site of the Old Stone Church. Of course we attended the meeting, which occurred on the Sabbath, and I kinder took a notion to Gough, and asked him to go home and dine with us. He accepted, and after dinner I took out the bottle I had carried for twelve years and asked him if he would take a drink. I just said it in fun, but great guns, you ought to have seen that man. He turned first red then white, and finally gasped out the words:—

"'Put it up. I can't stand it. Put it up, I say, before I disgrace myself.' I was frightened and put the flask in my pocket in a hurry. He didn't say anything for several minutes, but sat with his head between his hands. Finally he looked up and said:—

"'My friend, I am truly sorry that I should display my weakness in your house, but sometimes I have an uncontrollable desire for liquor, and when I saw your flask I would have given my life for a drink. But,' he continued, 'I understood you to say that you had carried that bottle and not drank anything for twelve years?'

"'That is true,' I said, and then proceeded to tell him of the circumstances of my swearing off. When he had heard me through he said, 'You are just the man I am looking for, and I want you to go to England with me.' Of course I was taken by surprise, and asked him to explain. He said that he had long wanted a reformed drunkard to travel with him and lecture, and that a man with my will was just the chap he desired. Well, I talked the matter over with my wife, and she said that she guessed she could spare me for a year or so, and the upshot of the thing was that Gough and I formed a partnership whereby I was to receive a handsome percentage of the receipts, and we started out.

"Albany was the first place where we were billed to lecture, and I tell you there was a crowd there to hear us. Gough had advertised the reformed drunkard feature for all it was worth, and I was regarded with as much curiosity as the dime museum freaks are to-day. From Albany we went to Boston, and finally to New York, where we bid good-bye to America and set sail for England. A stop was made in Ireland, and at Dublin the largest hall in the city wouldn't hold the people. I gave those who were on the outside tickets and had them come the next night. One way of running the lecture was to have Gough make the opening speech, after which he would introduce me as the reformed drunkard. I would step forward and as a starter would slap down my whisky bottle on the table and tell the audience how long I had carried it. After that we would call for people to come forward and sign the pledge, and there were dozens who complied every night. In England we were very successful and remained there three years. At the end of that time I was getting a little home-sick and wanted to see my family. So I told Gough that I guessed that I would quit, and we looked over the books and settled up. I had $11,000 coming to me, and I brought every cent of it back to Cleveland and deposited it in an old bank down on Canal Street. After that I carried my flask and did not drink any of its contents for a few weeks."

Speaking of Gough he said: "He was a great orator and a grand, noble man, but he was not master of himself. I remember one time, when a man put some whisky in a glass of soda water he was about to drink. Just that taste was enough to set the appetite afire within him, and he went off on a protracted spree. Very few people ever knew of this, but it is true nevertheless, and the fact is related in one of his biographies. When he came out of it I never saw a man feel so in all my life. He cried like a baby, and vowed that he would never speak before an audience again, and if I remember rightly he canceled his engagements for the rest of that year. He has told me many times when passing saloons mounted on a horse, he had dug the spurs into the beasts flanks, and ridden for miles at breakneck speed to get out of reach of temptation — From the Cleveland Leader.

"Don't Care to Eat."

It is with the greatest confidence that Hood's Sarsaparilla is recomended for loss of appetite, indigestion, sick headache, and simular troubles. This medicine gently tones the stomach, assists digestion, and makes one "real hungry." Persons in delicate health, after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a few days, find themselves longing for and eating the plainest food with unexpected relish.

According to a Chicago publication, a trunk line, to be known as the American Midland, is to be built from Jersey City through the Anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania to Chicago.

THE HUDSON AND THE RHINE.

Every traveller in Germany is familiar with the poetic and picturesque beauties of the Rhine, and if he be an American he recalls with pride that it is as in its own free land a rival. The Hudson has not old castles cropping out at intervals along its banks from which smouldering parapets of past centuries look down with approving content upon the lordly lapse of the stream below. He must grant that this charm, the creation of man, adds a zest to the German stream which the American one lacks, and must needs lack for all time.

But most stanch Americans will hold that this is the only superiority which the Rhine can boast over the Hudson. So much must be granted. And who feels much reluctance in conceding it? Ruins are something we do not hanker after on these cisalantic shores. Decay is not the attribute of youth.

The Hudson is one of the most beautiful rivers the country can boast. No one who travels along its silvery course from New York to Albany can deny this. A trip by day up the Hudson is one of the most fascinating which can be enjoyed.

Seated comfortably in the prow of one of the swift river boats, a beautiful panorama unrolls itself before the tourist's eyes. The charm of the winding river's varied banks is constantly changing. For some time after leaving the pier the thickly clustered houses of New York City lie along the eastern shore of the river. The first historic spot which he will gaze upon is the latest in order of being. The beautiful point where swaying elms crown an elevated portion of the bank which commands a ravishing view both up and down the stream in that part of the Riverside Drive just back of which, in their modest temporary resting-place, repose the remains of the great general who guided the nation in war and in peace.

A little way above, the Palisades begin—that lofty wall of perpendicular rock which rears itself on the west side of the river. For miles the solid natural bulwark extends along the brightly flowing stream. Its dignity is in keeping with the majesty of the Hudson at this stage of its progress when it is on the point of pouring its brimming waters into the bay.

As the boat steams higher up the river, softly wooded banks, from which beautiful villas stand forth, line its shore. On a hazy summer day a mist seems to rise like a veil from the gently flowing stream, and falls lightly about the verdure of its banks.

Town after town at this part of the course reveals itself as a summer resort, not for the casual visitor, for transient guests are not considered, nor are they desired, except "by special request," but for the oppulent merchants of the bustling city a few miles below who live in these exquisite rural retreats. Their fortunate proximity to the scene of labor for business men makes it possible for many persons to reside all the year round in Riverdale, Yonkers, Mount St. Vincent, Dobbs Ferry, Irvington, and Tarrytown.

Many have their steam-yachts in which to voyage down in the cool morning to Wall Street and stocks, as Jay Gould, whose immense Atlanta is the execration of the men at the docks along the river. Daily, in summer, the little Crœsus is borne up the stream to Tarrytown in the dusk of the late afternoon. The displacement of his yacht is so great that big waves are sent tumbling in to shore, where they breed havoc among the lightly fastened boats which lie at the different piers.

Higher up the stream the picturesque site of West Point meets the eye, and the stream broadens and winds till it fades away in the blue distance. Soon the bold, irregular outline of the Cattskill Mountains furnishes a lordlier element to the view, which, as a rule, is gentle and soothing in its soft grace.

Above the region of the mountains the stream falls off in poetic character and dignity of volume, though the big steamboats make their way as far as Albany. But by the time the traveller on the stream which owes its name to bold Hendrik Hudson has reached this term, he has been glutted with beauty.

Viewed at any time when the day is fair, the traveller up the Hudson will candidly admit that it is a noble river, fit to be mentioned with the other lordly streams. It is a show stream, one the natives like to have the foreign visitor behold, confident that he will bear away only the most delightful recollections of its varied beauty.—Harper's Weekly.

HOW TO LIVE IN FLORIDA.

Of course one must learn how to live in Florida; that means what to eat when to exercise, when to rest; and, above all, he must have caution until he knows how to use precaution; and this not because there is more danger there than elsewhere, but precisely because there is less danger there than elsewhere. It is here, of all places, that Nature gives her maximum of security, her minimum of risk to her worthy lovers, and in this sense of safety with her at all hours lies the whole truth about the danger. One forgets that danger can exist, and, so persuaded, goes too far and too fast in presumption on her favor. This too easy familiarity she can, and she may, punish. It is best to make haste slowly in gaining her complete devotion. Do not, at first, give yourself too much to the unsheltered air of night. Have a wrap always at hand, for the first hint of chill. In short, be half as prudent as you are anywhere else, and you will gain a whole world of new liberty, and have nothing to lose in exchange. I have spent days and nights on all waters in Florida,—the Wekiva, the St. John, the Indian River, on the Gulf of Mexico, in the harbors of Key West and Marco, and upon the placid waters which float upon their surface the ever-verdant fleet of the Ten Thousand Islands,—under the sun by day and the moon and stars by night, and have come out of it with a brown face, a clear eye, no extra flesh, considerable extra spirit, with "an appetite that could eat the solar system like a cake," with stores of plunder laid in by the imagination for tame days ahead, and with a treasury of physical vigor to help me through our Northern summers.

It is enough to say that in Florida there is room and the right place for you, whoever you are, when you find it. The thing is to find it. And here the only word I have to say is, Find it yourself. Do not ask any one the way. Do not go anywhere irrevocably on the recomendation or experience of any one else. Do not jump at the offer of land from some amiable land-agent, to build a house or plant an orange-grove on. Go, and continue to go, until you find the place that suits you. That place exists, and you will know it when you reach it, nor will the reports of any spies of Ascalon disturb your peace or unsettle your preference. It is all a matter of experiment. The only word I am willing to say on this subject is, Come and see!

As to the date of coming, and the date of leaving I think the student of Florida has much to learn, if he be in search of health. The tourist, as such has, like Death in the poem, all seasons for his own. He can take his trip of two weeks or two months any time between October and May and not miss much, whichever date he selects. In his case it does not matter, as nothing is at stake. But to the person who visits Florida with the purpose of finding out just what and all Florida can do for him in health, date and duration of time are matters of very great importance. On these points I can give only a conviction founded upon my own logic and observation, for I have not made acquaintance with my Florida as an invalid.

If I were an invalid and wished to test the whole valve of the climate of Florida myself, I would go in October and stay until September. I would spend September on the water, and go back in October; and thus I would live for three years. If I could not do this, I would go in October and stay until June. One should have the benefit of the growing time, and the time of maturity, in the midst of this bountiful Nature. All, and more, that the spring and summer do for us at the North, they do for one here. We revive when nature revives; we awake and become fresh in her awakening; and nowhere does she awake as she does here. All her cordials are in the air for us to drink and assimilate. Her sap and our blood run together. So it is everywhere, and so it is in Florida. —From "My Florida," by Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, in October Lippincot's.

HE SAW ONLY "MOTHER."

DYING, HE WENT BACK TO HER WHOSE TENDERNESS HAD NEVER FAILED.

The doctor said it was no unusual thing in delerium, but it seemed strange and pathetic to the loving watchers that the middle-aged, care-worn man, tossing wearily on a sick bed, should fancy himself again a child at his mother's knee. The green grave far away in a country village where she slept had no existence so far as he was concerned. She had never died, but was with her boy again. The many trials of life had passed from his memory now, and boyish woes and confidences alone were on his lips.

When his weeping wife laid her hand on his fevered brow he looked up and smiled and called her "mother." The hand that held the medicine to his lips, that smoothed the pillow, was "mother," and in all the faces that came and went about his bed he saw but hers, the first his baby eyes had known.

He had forgotten her so many years. He had been busy all these years, and a thousand worldly things had clouded the image of that kind old mother, but as death's mighty hand had set aside perplexing, fretting distractions, all so little now, clear and sweet to his parched soul came the memory of an innocent childhood and a mother's love. All at once he knew himself, a weary, troubled creature, sick and faint over earth's fevered draught, and he went back like a child, to her whose tenderness had never failed him.

"Your little boy is tired, mother. The sun is hot."

His children broke into sobs as he spoke, but his fatherhood was a thing unknown to him now.

"I'm sleepy and I want to go to bed. I've been a bad boy some to-day, ain't I? But I'll ask God to forgive me, and if you do, I guess he will, too. Hear my prayers, mother, I've learned them by heart now."

They saw that the end was close at hand then, and his wife made a frantic appeal to him to recognize her, but his ears were fast dulling to all earthly sounds, and he only struggled to raise himself to his knees. They could have restrained him, but he said:—

"Why, I can't go to sleep without saying my prayers. I've been a bad boy to day, and God would be angry, mother."

Then they helped him up, and with tender arms supported the weakened form, while he knelt with upturned eyes fast dimming with death's film, and clasping his hands as a little child does by its crib side, prayed the sweet old petition of:—

Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
If I should die before I wake
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take.

Ex-Governor Curtin's War Story.

Governor Curtin tells the following: Riding over the field just after the battle of Spottsylvania, I came across a wounded Pennsylvania soldier. He was leaning against a stump, holding a bloody leg. I dismounted and asked him how he was.

"Is the bone broken?" I inquired, as he explained his injury.

"No," said he, cheerfully, "only a bullet through the flesh." Still, he was faint and thirsty.

"What would you rather have just now, my man?" said I, "if you had but one wish?"—I was thinking of his home in the Pennsylvania hills.

"I would like to have a good drink of Pennsylvania whisky," he replied, with a smile.

"Then here it is," I replied, extending my flask, "you shall have it."

He took the flask, held it in his hands a second, then pointed at a dying Confederate soldier near by.

"Better give it to him," he said, "he needs it more than I do, poor fellow. Yes, give it to him."

We turned to the latter. For all we knew, it might have been the very man who shot him, but we propped him up and attempted to pour some of the liquor down his parched throat. He heard every word and seemed to understand the situation thoroughly. It was too late. With a grateful look in his eyes as he turned them a moment on the wounded Pennsylvania soldier, he sighed deeply and fell back dead.

I have seen that Pennsylvania soldier since the war. He had nothing to begin life anew with. On the strength of that deed to an enemy at such a time I indorsed him for a sum of money. He prospered. He now owns two mills and a couple of farms, and he deserves all he has.—New York Tribune.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C. Sept. 29, 1890.

Representative Flower aptly calls the tariff bill a cyclone measure, the aim of which is to break up all trade between the United States and foreign countries, and to enable the manufacturers to combine for the purpose of fleecing the people, while the farmers are allowed to foot all the bills without deriving the slightest benefit. Mr. Flower says that one item in the bill-binding twine-will ruin 300,000 workingmen in New York and New England. It was eminently fitting that the republicans of the House should, as a climax to their outrageous and unprecedented conduct in ignoring the rights of the people during this session of Congress, have railroaded this bill, which financially affects the interest of every man, woman and child in the United States, through the House, in just five hours, in spite of democratic protests against the injustice of such legislative methods. The bill is a triumph of the Chinese wall, high protective tariff wing of the republican party, and is a more unjust measure than any tariff bill yet put into operation in this country; it shows that Reed and McKinley are the dominating spirits of the republican party of today, and that the more conservative idees of some of the Senators of that party are not "in it", if I may so speak. The Senate is expected to agree to the bill tomrrow, and it doubtless will but it will be a bitter pill for a numbe. of the majority to swallow. But when the party whip cracks conscience and individual opinions count for nothing in the republican party.

The negro Langston, whom the republicans seated last week in the House, has developed a head of elephantine proportions. He intimated in more or less incendiary speech, which he made to a lot of negroes, that he was a candidate for the Presidenial nomination of his party.

There is a delegation of Georgia folks here who want Mr. Blaine to talk reciprocity at the opening of the Atlanta exposition, October 15. They have also invited Mr. Harrison and the other members of his cabinet to attend.

Another good republican is in trouble Mr. Wnest, postmaster of the House of Representatives, is, by resolution of the House, undergoing an investigation. He is charged with having compelled the contractor for carrying the mail to and from his office to pay him (Wheat) $150 a month out of the money paid him by the Governmen and also with having a man on his pay rolls a $100 a month who mere'y draws the money and turns over $95 of it to Wheat's son. The investigation is being conducted by the House committee on accounts.

The Raum white-washing committee is again examining witnesses. It wants to know who furnished the New York Tribune with the information upon which some very sharp criticisms of Pension office methods was based. It is said that the majority of the committee will hold back its white-washing report until after the Congressional election, for the purpose of preventing the democrats making public their minority report, which is understood to be a scathing arraignment of Raum.

There is a grand rush of lobbyists who are endeavoring to get some of their bills through the House in the confusion which always precedes the closing of a session of Congress, and some of them will probably succeed.

A joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to spend $1,000,000 inthe purchase of nickle to be used in making nickle-plated, steel armour plates for the crusers now being built was last week crowded through House and Senate under the plea of urgent necessity. As the supply of nickle is practically controlled by one firm this looks very much like an old-fashioned republican job.

A number of bills carrying large appropriations, which have already been passed by the Senate, among them the shipping bills, which Mr. Harrison has taken a rather suspicior interest in-going to the extent of sending a special message urging Congress to pass them, and the direct tax bill, which caused the memorial dead-lock in the House during the Fiftieth Congress, remain unacted upon by the House. The short session will be a grand looting time for the republicans.

Senator Ingalls says he didn't get $600 for going to Pittsburg the other day and making a republicnn speech. Perhaps he only got $500.

The composed lard bill is believed to be dead, as it is almost certain that the Senate will pass the Paddock pure food bill as a substitute for it.

The stock gamblers lobby, headed by "Deacon" S. V. White, of New York, a former republican member of the House, have proven too strong for the Butterworth "Option" bill, and it is not likely that it will be heard of again in the House.

A joint resolution providing for adjournment to-morrow has passed the House, but from present indications the Senate will not be ready so early.

Pay your taxes to-day for to-morrow is your last chance and you may forget it. To secure a vote in November you must pay your tax before or on October 4th.

Delicate Ladies!

Who have that tired and all-gone feeling, and don't like to be disturbed, will continue to be troubled with this complaint until they renew their impure blood. Sulphur Bitters will cause new and rich blood to course through every artery and vein in the human system. See another column.

Saturday October 4th is the last day to yay taxes to secure a vote at the November election.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.

If the World's Fair is to be run in the interest of the Republican party exclusively, and it begins to look that way, it is certain to be a colossal failure. The selection of republicans for Director General and Secretary was hardly accidental.

Every Democrat in the House of Representatives should provide himself with a pair of 'Kilgore bocts,' and be prepared to use them whenever necessary.

Democrats, do not allow yourselves to be lulled into a feeling of false security by republicans who pretend that they will make no effort to control the next House, and that they would prefer transferring the responsibility to the democrats. Such talk is bosh; the republicans want the House and are prepared to spend unlimited money, which the protected manufacturers have contributed in order to get it. The democrats can win if they will only work hard enough.

Why doesn't Speaker Reed station a United States soldier alongside of every democrat's seat in order to compel those gentlemen to remain in the House to help republicans manufacture political capital? It would be no greater perversion of the principles of a republican form of government than other things he has done. Perhaps he hasn't thought of the soldiers yet.

The republicans show their fear of Mr. Cleveland by the persistent regularity with which they start rumors of his failing health. His health and his intellect are both entirely too vigorous to suit the republican leaders, and unless all outward indications are at fault they bid fair to remain so for some years to come.

The action of the republican majority of the House of Representatives in giving the seat of Col. Elliott, of South Carolina, to a negro contestant without a word of argument, and without even giving Col. Elliott an opportunity of speaking in his own behalf was unprecedented, and a more revolutionary act never took place upon the floor of either branch of Congress. Well may the venerable Representative Vaux, who so ably succeeds the late Samuel J. Randall, exclaim "the empire is coming," and well may the independant New York Herald characterise speaker Reed as the American Robespierre; and if the people do not administer a stinging rebuke to the republican party by hurling it from power there are leaders in its ranks audacious enough to attempt to found an empire, even though it be necessary to go through the horrors of a "Reign of Terror" to do so.

The republican who can praise the whole of the monopolistic tariff has an India-rubber conscience, and the tiller of the soil who can support the party that fathers it is sadly indifferent to his own interest.

The manufacturing Shylocks have demanded their stipulated pound of flesh of the republican party, and not daring to refuse them the republican has allowed it to be cut from the most vital part of the man who produces the real foundation of a country's wealth—the agriculturist. Whether the operation will kill the victim depends upon whether he proposes to meekly stand the treatment of high tariff plasters, which is all that is being done to stay the flow of his life blood.

Speaker Reed assayed the roll of a "funny" man the other day in Philadelphia. Before he does it again he should obtain a clown's outfit.

The negro voters in the doubtful states must be propitiated; hence the thefts of the seats of two legally elected white members of the House of Representatives.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo O, contains no mercury and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. ☞Sold by Druggists, 75c. per bottle. 9-19 4-t.

Soldiers Burial Bill.

Circulars are being sent out from the republican head quarters, to every soldier in the state giving Ex-Governor Pattison's veto upon the soldie s burial bill They picture the Soldier under the burial bill, as being taken to the cemetery in good style, when if this bill had not been passed he would have been interred in the potter's field. They do not give the text of the Act, but only draw upon their imagination to decieve the voters. The Act provides for ($35.) thirty-five dollars as the maximum of expenses and these expenses are to be included in the following accounts:

Laying out body, $.... Coffin, $.... Grave, $.... Hearse hire, $.... Sundries, $..... Now in order to secure this magnificent sum of $35. three reputable citizens must attest to the fact that the deceased is a pauper by the following oath: Personally appeared before me.....who being duly .....depose and say, that they knew the said.....and believes he died without leaving sufficient means to defray the necessary expenses of funeral.

.....and subscribed before me, this.....day of..... A. D. 18.....

.....Justice of the Peace.

Nor is this sufficient, but the County Commissioners shall "transcribe in a book to be kept for the purpose, all the facts contained in such reports and statements." The Act further provide that the County Commissioners shall appoint a sufficient number of suitable persons, in each township and ward in the County, who shall serve without campensation, and these suitable persons shall verify that the deceased is a pauper by careful inquiry whether the deceased left "insufficient means to defray the necessary funeral expenses".

The Act provides that the soldiers shall be buried by the County in which he dies, not in which he is a resident. Thus adjoining counties can induce their pauper Soldiers, as the Act calls him, to migrate to another county who shall defray the expense of the burial.

The republican Candidate for Governor, who expects to profit by parading this act before the soldiers, never was in a battle in his life—but while the soldier was being paid a small pittance for fighting, for sacrificing self, the republican candidate was at home, and his bank was reaping rich rewards from fluctuations of currency. His competitor for the nomination Major Montooth of Pittsburg, was a gallant Soldier, and was the only soldier candidate before the convention. The republicans showed their appreciation for his services by defeating him for the nomination.

Here is the Burial act in full:

SECTION 1.—Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That it shall be the duty of the county commissioners of each county in this State to appoint a sufficient number of suitable persons in their township and ward in their county, other than those prescribed by law for the care of paupers and the custody of criminals, to look after and cause to be buried, in a decent and respectable manner, in any cemetary or burial ground within this state, other than those used excessively for the burial of the pauper dead, at an expense to their county not exceeding thirty five dollars the body of any honorably discharged soldier, sailor, or marine who served in the army or navy of the United States during the late rebellion, or any preceding war, and shall here-after die in their county, leaving insufficient means to defray the necessary burial expenses and the person so appointed shall bold their offices at the pleasure of the county commissioners, and shall serve without compensation.

SECTION 2.—It shall be the duty of persons so appointed in each township and ward in each county, before assuming the charge and expense of the burial of the body of any soldier, sailor or marine in their township or ward under the provisions of this act, to first satisfy themselves, by a careful inquiry into and examination of all the circumstances in the case of such deceased soldier, sailor, or marine whose body they are called upon to bury served in the army or navy of the United States during the late rebellior or any preceding war, and was honorably discharged and died in their township or ward, leaving insufficient means to defray the necessary burial expenses; whereupon, if they are satisfied that such facts exist, they shall take charge of the body of such deceased soldier, sailor, or marine, and cause it to be buried in the manner mentioned in the first section of this act, and thereupon they shall immediately report their action in the case to county commissioners of their county, setting forth the facts ascertained by them, together with the name, rank and command to which such deceased soldier, sailor, or marine belonged at the time of his discharge, the date of his discharge, the character of his occupation immediately preceding his death, the date of his death and place of his burial, and, also, an accurately itemized statement of the expenses incurred in and about such burial; which report shall be duly attested by three reputable persons of full age residing in the township or ward in which such deceased soldier, sailor, or marine died, knowing the fact that such deceased soldier, sailor, or marine died without sufficient means to defray the necessary burial expenses.

SECTION 3—It shall be the duty of the county comissioners of each county of this State, upon receiving the reports and statements of expenses from their appointees under the provisions of this act, to transcribe in a book to be kept for the purpose all the facts contained in such reports and statements, and to draw warrants upon the treasurer of their county for payment of such expenses not exceeding, however, the said sum of thirty-five dollars on each body buried in accordance with the provisions of this act to be paid out of the fund of the county, and such warrants shall be made payable to the persons appointed under the provisions of this act who shall have buried the bodies for which the warrants are to be so drawn.

The Census Disgrace.

It is a national disgrace that the census of the nation just taken is proved to be grossly inacurate in many instances and distrusted throughout. It is the first time that the census statistics are to be generally disbelieved.

Under the violent sectional partisanship that now rules in the White House and in the popular branches of Congress, it is not surprising that the census has been most carelessly taken in the South, and there has been a systematic effort to lessen the population of the Southern States; but the incompetency and negligence which made the census next to farcical in the South have prevailed in the North as well, and there is now very general and reasonable distrust in the accuracy of all the census returns.

So glaring have been the errors in the census returns that a number of Northern cities have formally protested and, in some instances, have forced a re-enumeration of the population; and when the census returns as to population are so grossly inacurate, what faith can be given to the commercial, industrial, financial and other important census statistics?

The fundamental mistake of the administration was in choosing as head of the census bureau one who had no claim whatever to the position beyond his alleged party services.

Superintendent Porter is yet new in his American citizenship and it is not to be expected that he could be in touch with the countless sinews of American progress; but he is not only a convert to Americanc citizenship but a later convert to Republicanism, and his chief merit is the common zeal of the apostate.

It is a reproach to the nation that our census returns are a failure, but it is the old, old story of prostituting the great practical work of the Republic to importunate placemen.—Times.

Dyspepsia Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating Sick Headache Heartburn Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.: Dear Sirs:—I have used several bottles of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with perfect success, on a valuable and blooded mare that was quite lame with a Bone Spavin. The mare is now entirely free from lameness and shows no bunch on the joint. Respectfully, F. H. HUTCHINS.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

MONROE, La., May 5, '90.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.: Gents:—I think it my duty to render you my thanks for your far famed Kendall's Spavin Cure. I had a four year old filly which I prized very highly. She had a very severe swollen leg. I tried about eight different kinds of medicines which did no good. I purchased a bottle of your Kendall's Spavin Cure which cured her in four days. I remain yours, MARION DOWDEN.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

FOR SALE. VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

The undersigned, surviving executor of the last will and testament of Ezekiel Cole, late of Sugarloaf township, in Columbia county, Penna., now offers at private sale a large body of the most desirable real estate to be found in the township.

It consists of a tract of land lying upon both sides of the Fishingcreek, and containing in the whole about 280 Acres.

That portion of it which is upon the west side of the creek has the following improvements and advantages, to-wit. A large frame formerly kept as a hotel, a Frame Building erected for and occupied as a country store, a large frame building erected and occupied as a tenant house, and also outbuildings, Saw mill, &c. It is well wooded and has a considerable quantity of excellent fruit. It is accessible by two public roads and a county bridge, and also by the Bloomsburg & Sullivan railroad, and it contains about 111 Acres.

The remainder of the tract lying upon the east side of the creek, is also accessible by two public roads and a county bridge across Fishingcreek to the railroad. The improvements are a large barn &c., the whole tract having been occupied as the homestead farm. This piece contains about 170 Acres.

It will be sold together or in parcels as may be deemed most expedient. The sale will be by the acre. A draft of the land with the improvements roads, &c., can be seen in the hands of the executor at the banking house of the Bloomsburg Banking Company, where also inquirers may learn terms of sale, &c. Aug. 1-1890. H. H. GROTZ, Executor, tf. Bloomsburg, Pa.

A Present to Our Subscribers.

It is with pleasure that we announce to our many patrons that we have made arrangements with that wide-awake, illustrated farm magazine, the AMERICAN FARMER, published at Fort Wayne, Ind., and read by nearly 200,000 farmers by which that great publication will be mailed FREE, to the address of any of our subscribers WHO WILL COME IN AND PAY UP ALL ARREARAGES ON SUBSCRIPTION AND ONE YEAR IN ADVANCE FROM DATE, AND TO ANY NEW SUBSCRIBER WHO WILL PAY ONE YEAR IN ADVANCE. This is a grand opportunity to obtain a first-class farm journal free. The AMERICAN FARMER is a large 16-page journal, of national circulation, which ranks among the leading agricultural papers. It treats the question of economy in agriculture and the rights and privileges of that vast body of citizens—American Farmers—whose industry is the basis of all material and national prosperity. Its highest purpose is the elevation and enobbling of Agriculture through the higher and broader education of men and women engaged in its pursuits. The regular subscription price of the AMERICAN FARMER is $1.00 per year.

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING. From any one number ideas can be obtained that will be worth thrice the subscription price to you or members of your household, YET YOU GET IT FREE. Call and see sample copy. tf.

E. M. Tewksbury, Democratic candidate for Legislature in this County is on the stump in neighboring counties in the interest of the State ticket. Mr. Tewksbury is setting a good example for other candidates. Let those who attempted to defeat Mr. Tewksbury for the nomination by sending out circulars to the effect that he was not a democrat, now come forth and if they are not able to go on the stump, let them give of their means and send a substitute.

On Thursday Sept. 25th, some fifty members of the Strawberry Ridge congregation, visited the Reformed Parsonage at Jerseytown to surprise their pastor Rev. W. G. Engle and his family in the form of a donation party, which was really a surprise.

The ladies took possession of the kitchen and prepared a large dinner, after the enjoyment of the dinner there was a social talk, and when they left, many valuable things remained for which the pastor and family felt greatly thankful and much encouraged. The members felt the truth, "That it is more blessed to give than to receive."

John R. Townsend, Chairman of the Democratic Standing Committee of this County was at Wilkes-Barre last Saturday evening in attendance at the meeting of the Democratic District Chairmen of the seventh division.

The following committeemen were in attendance: William Maxwell, Bradford; John R. Townsend, Columbia; George T. Horn, Lackawanna; P. A. Meixell, Luzerne; George D. Edmunson, Montour; A. W. Schalck, Russle Karns, Sullivan; Azor Lathrop, Susquehanna; P. S. Barnes, Wayne; and Edward Stephens, Wyoming. Chairman Charles H. Dickerman, of Northumberland, was the only absentee. Ex-Chairman Kisner was also in attendance.

All the committeemen gave the most encouraging reports from their districts. In the coal regions Pattison will receive an unusually heavy vote, and from the agricultural districts comes still more encouraging reports. The principal object of the meeting was to arrange a schedule for the tour of the regions by the candidates. A program was agreed upon, which will be carried out if it does not conflict with arrangements of the state committee.

The Bloomsburg and Sullivan R. R. Co. will run additional trains during Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2, 3, and 4th, to accommodate all those who desire to attend Benton Fair. One of the special features will be the balloon ascension and parachute leap, Friday Oct. 3rd by Prof. Dennis of Indiana, and should be seen by everybody.

Meeting of Pomona Grange No. 5.

The next regular meeting of the Pomona Grange No. 5, P. of H., composed of Columbia and Lower Luzerne counties, will be held in the hall of the Farmers' Produce Exchange (limited), on Friday, Oct. 10th, at 10 o'clock a. m. Address of welcome, by Bro. E. H. Little. Let all Granges in the district be represented. The fifth degree will be conferred in full in the evening, if there are any who wish to take it.

H. M. GROTZ, Rec. Sec'y. WM. MENSCH, Master.

Crowd the House.

The Opera House should be crowded next Thursday evening to see the play of "Wife for Wife." The troupe is one of the best. Secure your seats early and get a good seat. The following is from the Washington Post:

Mr. John A. Stevens, well-known to lovers of melodrama, commenced a week's engagement last night. He has departed somewhat from his former style of plays in the selection of such a drama as "Wife for Wife." It gives him a large field in which to display his abilities as an accomplished and finished actor. The play is full of interesting situations. It is intensely sensational, but the drama is new and startling in all its details and is presented with an action which makes it thoroughly appreciable.

Bloomsburg Fair.

The Bloomsburg fair will be held October 15, 16, 17, and 18th. The executive committee have made many increases in premiums in the fancy department, as well as in the display of agricultural products. Every citizen of the county should take a pride in making a grand display of exhibits. The Columbia County Fair has a wide reputation and is known as the best fair in the state. The large and fine display is what has given it the reputation, and our ladies should see to it that the display this year will surpass that of any former years. The premiums for stock raised in this county have been advanced, this should bring out a greater amount of stock from the county than for previous years. The secretary announces that the application for entries indicate a great increase over other years.

Wife for Wife.

The managers of the Opera House are to be congratulated on securing such a thrilling and picturesque play as that of John A. Stephens' "Wife for Wife." This grand play will be given in the Opera House next Thursday evening, Oct. 9th The following from the New York Evening World shows how well the play was received upon its first presentation in Brooklyn.

"In "Wife for Wife," the most recent work from the pen of John A. Stevens, the author-actor, has consolidated some of the most effective situations of several of his previous efforts. The drama, which had its first Brooklyn presentation last night at the Grand Opera House, might, as has been suggested by somebody, be called "The Black Iago," for that title would depict its character precisely. A vengeance-seeking slave ingeniously plots to destroy his master's happiness by poisoning his mind against his wife, and succeeds so well that a duel between the husband and his wife's former lover is the result. Several striking scenes are worked up through the slave's cunning lies, and the play is dramatically strong. The comedy scenes are at times rather overdrawn, but they please the audience."

John A. Stevens the author of the play will be here as one of the actors. Don't miss it.

THE 'COLUMBIAN' IS CORRECT.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN:

I noticed in last issue of your paper under the heading of Council Proceedings that a communication was received from the Bloomsburg Water Co., in which was the following: "The Town council by their resolution dated August 21, 1890, have offered to pay the Bloomsburg Water Company for the use of water for fire hydrants $10.00 per annum to take effect Oct. 1st, 1890," and again under a resolution of the council as follows: "That we will pay no more than ten dollars per annum per hydrant for water after Oct. 1, 1890. In the Sentinel of the same date it reads: "The Town council by their resolution dated August 21, 1890, have offered to pay the Bloomsburg Water Co. for the use of water for fire hydrants $10.00 per month to take effect Oct. 1, 1890," as also the resolution of the council reads: "That we will pay no more than ten dollars per month per hydrant for water after Oct. 1, 1890." Which one is correct? How could such a great mistake be made when you both copy from the same minutes.

A TAXPAYER.

Bloomsburg, Sept. 30, 1890.

[The COLUMBIAN is correct. The present price is $20 'per annum'. There are 48 hydrants, which at the old price would be $960 per year. If it were ten dollars 'per month' as stated in the Sentinel it would be $5760 per year. We don't see how the proof reader of the Sentinel could permit such a gross error to escape his notice.]—Ed.

Popular Lecture Course at State Normal School, Bloomsburg, Pa.

OCT. 27.—Miss Olaf Krarer, the Esquimaux Lady, 40 inches tall, but full grown, tells of the life and habits of the people of Eastern Greenland, where no traveller has ever been: Appears in the dress of her native country. The fact that she is engaged for every night in the season shows her popularity.

Nov. 22.—Hon. R. G. Hoar. His lecture upon the labor question is one of the most humorous and instructive that is given upon the public platform.

JAN. 16, 1891.—Park Sisters, Cornetists. Their fame and skill is well known from Maine to California. A humorist and impersonator will accompany them.

FEB. 20, 1891.—Hon. Wm. Blakie. How to Develope our bodies. Mr. Blakie is the only man who has made this subject so popular and pleasing that the same community wants to hear it again and again. He is almost invariably recalled a second season.

MARCH 13, 1891. Peter Von Finklestine Mamreov. The City of Jerusalem. Nobody can afford to miss this. He is a native of Jerusalem. With scenery, furniture and costumes, he makes his audience feel as if they were in the sacred city, and his explanations of Biblical allusions, and Oriental customs can not fail to please and profit.

Course tickets $1.50. Single admission 50c.

Holders of course tickets will be given one evening with the phonograph during the course. That wonderful instrument will be explained, and its powers exhibited.

Chart will be at Dentler's shoe store, Sat. Oct. 4th.

An Announcement.

The Ladies of the Benton Methodist Episcopal Church would respectfully announce to their many friends and the public generally, that they will have a booth and table at the coming agricultural Fair at Benton. Refreshments in the way of sandwiches, hot coffee, pies, cakes, oyster-soup, chicken-soup, bananas, candies, &c., can be had at all hours. A liberal share of the public patronage of such places is asked. The proceeds to help repair the M. E. Church of Benton, Pa.

Benton.

Grain Sowed: corn cut; everybody ready to attend the Fair.

Town is lively; business brisk.

The Kiechner Sale was well attended; goods all sold and many young housekeepers happy.

Wesley & Smith are building a Switch from the main track in their planing mill. Quite a valuable addition to their business.

Rohr McHenry & Son, shipped a car load of fat hogs last week; they were fattened at the Distillery.

The windows of our stores present an attractive appearance. People attending the Fair will do well to examine their stock.

A few weeks ago we noticed in the colums of your paper a romantic account of "Benton Gambling." At the time, we thought it hardly worthy of notice, but allow us to say: that the people of Benton do not embrace such romantic business, and further we do not feel disposed to invest hard earned money in games of chance. We work for our living in this part of the country and have no three days gambling, no weeping women, no barns in ashes.

If some people indulge in such romantic dreams, newspapers would be wise not to interpret them publicly. We would like your source of information.

Great preparations have been made to make the coming Fair a success. Let Bloomsburg give us a good turnout and we will return the compliment the following week.

The many new buildings are nearing completion and add greatly to the appearance of our town.

The "Balloon Man" is going up for sure and, (confidential), it is a settled fact that he is coming down. Thus the people will get two sights for one money.

"OCCASIONAL."

[The item in refrence to the gambling was taken from a dispatch in the Philadelphia papers and was astonishing news to us. We are glad to know it was a false telegram, and that the citizens of Benton are free from gambling.—ED.]

A Cure for Constipation and Sick Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick headache in one night. For the blood liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50 cents a package.

Central.

Central is growing rapidly, people passing through here remark concerning the improvement for one year.

M. P. Hess, whilst out a few evenings ago thought he saw a wild turkey and shot it, but when he came to look it was a tame one, and Mr. Ed Yorks was minus a turkey roast.

Mr. Sam Yorks is filled with joy,
When asked the cause he said it was

Mr. E. P. Albertson of the Central Park Hotel is on the sick list, he has been quite ill.

Mrs. Burt Sutliff has been quite ill. Her many friends will be glad to hear she is slowly recovering.

Miss Grace Kocher was the guest of Miss Ida B. Hess last Sunday, in the afternoon they took a walk to Central Park Grove.

Buckwheat cakes will soon be the order of the day.

Sunday evening while the people were gathering for church George Yorks called for Mart Shoemaker and Mart run to see what was the scare. George said there was a coon ran up the walnut tree. Mart took his lantern and climbed the tree and sure enough there sat the coon. Mart came down and went after his gun. Some of the boys said "don't shoot, for it is Wes Fritz's cat." But Mart said it was a coon for he could see by the wink of his eye. He fired away and down came the coon, and the boys were fooled about the cat.

Mr. Hope F. Hess has gone to stillwater to work at the carpenter trade. Success to hope. B. ROGERS.

Waller.

The Benton Fair is all the talk now, it promises to be very well attended.

Henry Hirleman, Sr. has been dangerously ill the past week.

Mrs. Lizzie Jones and niece have returned to their home in Iowa.

Frank Fritz is the boss potato raiser. He raised one weighing 2½ lbs; while H. H. Hirleman comes in next with one weighing 2¼ lbs. Who can beat them?

Buckwheat averages little more than half crop; but as there was a great deal sowed, there will not likely be any scarcity.

We were visited by a pretty hard frost last week; but the farmers were mostly ready for it.

A small party, who said they were on their way to the fair, camped on the common near here for a few days.

Jacob Hirleman has moved in his new home. He has it painted up very nicely and can boast of the best house in that valley.

Sutton Yorks has sold thirteen bushels of peaches; other farmers have sold several bushels; but apples are almost a wonder to look at.

Joseph Cook has just returned from a long lecture in the Summer schools, extending as far west as Minnesota, and is reported to have had great and brilliant audiences. Mr. Cook has had 3000 miles to travel in the severest heat of Summer, and is now at Cliff Seat, Lake George, engaged in editorial work. He is under contract to give thirty lectures on the Pacific Coast in the early Autumn.

People who have been abroad on Hamburg steamers are full of praises of a new water, Saarbrunner it is called, something like Apollinaris, but much more delightful. It came from the Hartz Mountains. A number of Philadelphians have brought large quantities of it home with them.

It is on record that the Vanderbilts once gave a check for £700,000 in a tremendous railway transaction, but that record is now beaten by the check for £1,250,000 said to be drawn in London by the Indian and Peninsula Railway Company.

The New York Tribune tells of a fastidious lady who drove to her butcher's and told that individual that whenever he or his assistants spoke to her through the telephone they must wash their hands and put on a coat. "It is highly indelicate," she said, "for you to speak to a lady with unclean hands and in your shirt sleeves, and unless you cease doing so I shall have to trade with the other butcher person."

As a reunion held recently it was learned that of twenty-seven persons, which represented the three generations, nineteen had six toes on each foot.

A remarkable occurence happened in Lewistown, Me. A little 15 year-old boy was in swimming near the falls while the Cowan mill was shut down. He started for shore just as it started up. The extra flow of water threw him over and carried him toward the falls. Before he could recover he was swept over. He was not, strange to say, injured to any extent. He swam to the bar and was rescued by a boy.

There is a bird's home and hospital in Oxford street, London, where people can take their pets to be nursed and cared for. The proprietor says birds suffer chiefly from consumption and asthma—diseases brought on by the birds being placed in draughty windows. Consumption is helped on by the birds being indiscriminately fed on all sorts of things that are unsuitable as food. Birds are very fond of luxuries, and the more you give them the more they will eat. When a bird is going off into a consumption it is always eating. He pointed to one and said; "He is in a consumption, and he will be like a ball of down to-morrow—all puffed out. Physic will sometimes arrest the disease."

Newstead Abbey, which Washington Irving so lovingly and perfectly described, has been for many years a private residence. At one time the estate of Lord Byron, it was sold to Colonel Wildman, who is said to have spent more than a million dollars in restoring the buildings and beautifying the grounds. It is now the home of Colonel Webb, the friend and companion of Dr. Livingstone, and it was here that the great missionary wrote his books. Of course many interesting memories cluster around the historic old abbey. It was here that Lord Byron used to see ghosts at night in his looking-glass, and his bedroom in the old haunted tower is still pointed out to visitors. Not long ago, Joaquin Miller, being a guest of Colonel and Mrs. Webb, in a spirit of romantic adventure spent a few nights in this chamber, declaring that if the ghost of Byron did not appear his faith in the reappearance of the dead would be greatly shaken. An account of what really did appear, together with much interesting information about the abbey, is contained in an article entitled "Nights at Newstead Abbey," which Mr. Miller will contribute to HARPER'S MAGAZINE for October. The article will be illustrated from photographs, and drawings by American artists.

Educating the Silkworm

An industry of great magnitude in Japan is silk culture. The silk worm is "educated" to such a degree that it becomes a mere machine, and its life must be a burden to it. It lays its eggs in rows on cards; it spins its cocoons to order, and finally dies when required. Silkworm eggs are white and about the size of the head of a large pin, and they are sold on cards like buttons. These eggs may be kept all Winter long without harm to them, and hatched out in the warm months. The young worm is an exceedingly minute and delicate animal, and the mulberry leaves adapted for its food have to be chopped up as fine as possible. As the worm grows older the leaves are not chopped finely, until, when it is full grown, it is allowed to enjoy a whole mulberry leaf intact. This life of dissipation is too much for it, and with a little encouragement it seeks the solitude of its cocoon. The cocoons are then thrown into hot water, which kills the larvæ and dissolves the mucilaginous matter that keeps the cocoons together. A silk worker deftly finds the end, and in a few moments the poor worm's home is about forty yards of silk fibre on a reel. A few of the larvæ are allowed to come to maturity for the sake of breeding purposes and the eggs. To get out they break a hole through the cocoons. Such cocoons are called pierced, and from them an inferior quality of silk is made.—From the New York Evening Telegram.

UP PIKE'S PEAK.

THERE ARE NOW THREE WAYS OF REACHING THE FAMOUS MOUNTAIN TOP

A trip through Colorado which does not include the ascent of the famous Pike's Peak is incomplete. To accomplish this three routes are offered the ambitious tourist. Taking the old trail of the early gold hunters you may follow the maze of its innumerable windings up Cheyenne Mountain and along the margin of the Seven Lakes. If skill and practice have made you consummate master of rein and steed you will make the journey on horseback. Lacking education in this direction you are consigned to the tender mercies of cautious mule or docile burro (donkey,) self concentrated quadruped, deaf alike to crack of whip or pleading voice. A second route is by carriage from Cascade Canyon. It, however, spurning the slow-climbing stage coach, you seek surer means of rapid transit, the Pike's Peak cog-wheel railway offers superior inducements. This road, however, is still unfinished, and, having reached the half-way house by rail you are left to continue your journey on back of horse, mule or donkey. The relative advantages and attractions of routes having been duly weighed, the trip by coach seemed most feasible. Seven of these coaches meet the train at Cascade to carry travellers to the distant summit. An inspiring motto, emblazoned in startling ochre on the rear of each, reads "Pike's Peak or Bust." Aided by horse and mule and skilful driver, it proved Pike's Peak The ride from Cascade to the summit is seventeen miles, through scenery often beautiful, always sublime. Colossal rock-forms tower above you; on every hand rise gigantic pilasters—vast caryatids supporting the entablature of the hills. Your journey is accomplished in five hours Four horses convey your coach to the half-way house and are there supplanted by as many mules, more sure-footed and therefore better mountain travellers. Your route up the steep mountain is a zigzag one, varied by innumerable windings on edges of abrupt precipices and startling declivities. But your confidence in mules and driver is calm and strong. With assurance of perfect safety and even a sense of power, you look up 2,000 feet at the leader slowly moving along the brow of the mountain, and then downward 2,000 feet at the last coach, apparently journeying in the wrong direction. The scene that meets the eye as you are slowly lifted up the mountain side is almost bewildering in its sublime beauty. The topography of the entire country is disclosed to the charmed eye, mountain and valley, shimmering lake and sparkling rivulet making a panorama of incomparable and inspiring grandeur. Giant peaks to the southwest dwindle to insignificant hills. Colorado Springs becomes a patch of green in the distance, Manitou steals from sight within the arms of the hills. Leaving the half-way house you are soon above timber line, and now the tedious part of the ride begins. Following the trees the grasses soon disappear also; only a few hardy persistent mosses remain to rest the wearied eye. Higher yet! rocks everywhere! The mules struggle upwards; vegetation has entirely disappeared. Rocks on every hand. It seems as if the groaning mountain had belched forth this appalling aggregation, whose prodigious mass covers summit and sides. At last the very pinnacle of the mountain is attained. Only rocks! a vast desolation confronts the awe-struck, silent traveller.

And now the rarified atmosphere plays strange pranks with the helpless being whose temerity and "vaulting ambition" has gained for him this cloud-swept elevation. The vanquished may be found on every hand. The victim of superfluous avoirdupois is first to succumb. From this assemblage of pale countenances and whirling brains we discretely walked away, lest sympathy should prove more potent than elevation. For the first time we looked down upon fleecy clouds that trailed their shining garments along the mountain side. After a stay of half an hour at the United States signal service station at the summit, our return trip was made in three hours.—From the Chicago Herald.

A Tree That Owns Property.

There is a tree at Athens, Ga., which is a property holder. In the early part of the century the land on which it stands was owned by Col. W. H. Jackson, who took great delight in watching its growth and enjoying its shade. In his old age the tree had reached magnificent proportions and the thought of its being destroyed by those who would come after him was so repugnant that he recorded a deed, of which the following is part: "I, W. H. Jackson, of the county of Clarke, of the one part, and the oak tree (giving location), of the county of Clarke, of the other part: Witnesseth, that the said W. H. Jackson, for and in consideration of the great affection which he bears said tree, and his desire to see it protected, has conveyed and by these presents do convey unto the said oak tree entire possession of itself and of all land within eight feet of it on all sides."—Chicago Herald.

Rabbits and quail are unusually plentiful this year owing to last winter being so mild. This will make it excellent for hunting this fall and winter.

New Reporter—I went down and interviewed General Snappy, as you ordered, sir.

Editor—Did the general lose his temper?

New Reporter—Oh, no; he had it with him.—Light.

One of Many.

"Say! called out the sharp-featured woman, "do you warrant these musk melons to be ripe?"

"We do, madam," said the grocer.

"Well, I want to get one."

"In a moment, ma'am. Just as soon as I tie up this—"

"I'm in a hurry. If you can't wait on me just say so and I'll go to some other store."

Excuse me just a moment," the grocer said to the customer he had been waiting on. "Now, ma'am, I'll be happy to—"

"You say you warrant them?"

"Yes"

"How much is this one?"

"Forty cents."

"My land! I can get 'em like that over here at Hamilton's for twenty-five."

"I think not, ma'am. But we have them at all prices, from 40 cents down to 5."

"Take 20 cents for this one?"

"Couldn't do it, ma'am."

"How would you sell three like this?"

"They would cost you half a dollar."

"Sure they're ripe?"

"If they're not they won't cost you anything."

"Well, they oughtn't to. You make profit enough on 'em anyhow."

"I make about 60 cents on the entire lot, ma'am. Did you say you would take those three?"

"No, I didn't. I don't believe they're ripe.

"I assure you, ma'am, they are all ripe." (To the other customer.) I'll be there in just a moment." (To the sharp-featured woman.) "I'll let you have the three for 45 cents. That's exactly cost."

"M'm!" mused the woman, "you say you warrant them?"

"We do."

"Won't take 45 cents for these four, I reckon?"

"Couldn't possibly do it, ma'am. That's less than cost."

"Wouldn't sell these five for 10 cents apiece?"

"Would be glad to oblige you, but I couldn't let them go at that."

"M'm! I'll take this five cent one. Here's a $5 bill. It's the least I've got. Give me the change as quick as you can."

Yet people wonder why grocers have a bald spot on top of the head and contribute so little to the support of foreign missions.

CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?

EXPERIMENTS REPORTED TO THE FRENCH ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

Among the subjects that came before the recent Medical Convention at Berlin for consideration was that of the treatment of pulmonary complaints. The question as to whether consumption can be cured or whether it can be prevented among persons who inherit weak lungs, is one that has for generations excited the liveliest interest among medical men. Two reports were made to the Berlin Convention on this subject.

Dr. Paul Gibier, of the Pasteur Institue in this city, who was a member of the Berlin Convention, was asked yesterday what he thought the probable outcome would be of the reported recent discoveries relating to the treatment of consumption.

"I have received a copy," he replied, "of an elaborate report by Prof. Grancher, of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, which has just been made to the French Academy of Medicine, giving the results of experiments in preventing consumption by vaccination. The animals operated upon were rabbits. Briefly it may be said that the object aimed at by Prof. Grancher is to make the rabbits consumptive proof.

The virus is prepared from tuberculosis bacillus (the germ of consumption) and is of ten grades of strength. The inoculations were made at intervals of ten days, care being taken to see that the animals were in a perfectly healthy condition. After being subjected to this treatment the rabbits were inoculated with virulent virus, but no developement of tuberculosis followed. The efficacy of the treatment was illustrated by inoculating other healthy rabbits, which had not been treated according to the new discovery, with the virulent virus. In all these cases tuberculosis was quickly developed and the animals died. None of the consumptive-proof rabbits were affected. It will be seen that the treatment thus far is a preventive of the disease, but further experiments are being made with the hope of being able to apply the treatment, or one somewhat similar, to patients in which tuberculosis has been fully developed."
